Preface

Dear Colleagues,

On behalf of the Local Organizing Committee it is a great pleasure to welcome you to this very special, beautiful conference center called Asilomar (which literally means “refuge by the sea”). Asilomar opened in 1913 as a women’s retreat center with over 300 young women meeting in tents scattered throughout the property. Shortly thereafter Julia Morgan, a leading American architect, was hired to design a number of buildings in the arts and crafts style. Nearly all of the buildings on the grounds have been completely restored and many new structures have been built to meld with Julia Morgan’s vision. We invite everyone to soak up the ambience, rich architectural detail, and the incredible natural beauty of this bit of paradise on the Pacific Coast.

Thirty years ago, SPR held its 11th annual meeting at Asilomar. Irene Elkin, the outgoing president, handed the presidential gavel over to Ed Bordin. Along with many of our old-time members, I was fortunate to participate in that memorable 1980 meeting. What made it memorable was the combination of a rich, stimulating program, the open, warm camaraderie of the SPR membership, and the opportunity to enjoy this incredible refuge by the sea. I vividly remember that on the final day of the conference no one was ready to leave and many were clamoring to have another meeting at Asilomar as soon as possible. Well, it took 30 years but we’re back at last!

Now with over 500 participants, representing 25 different countries worldwide, there is no doubt that over the past thirty years, SPR Asilomar 2010 has become a truly International research conference. The conference program officially begins on Wednesday afternoon with eleven pre-conference workshops, followed by Louis Castonguay’s presidential address in Merrill Hall at 6:00 pm and a welcoming dinner/ reception in Crocker Dining Hall at 8:00 pm. In order to accommodate over 600 research presentations, ten 90 minute parallel sessions (9 panels or brief paper sessions, and one structured) are scheduled for presentation over the three days of the conference. A wide range of topics emerging in the fields of psychotherapy research, practice, training and theory are well represented across the program and will provide a rich opportunity for lively discussion and future research collaborations. Additionally, after dinner Poster Sessions on Thursday and Friday evening will also be an excellent opportunity to meet psychotherapy researchers who are eager to discuss their research findings and share ideas. A special structured discussion on Friday morning will feature a dialogue between emerging scholars and senior researchers, that will highlight the historical importance of key contributions made by SPR members to the field of psychotherapy research. Two of the three senior researchers participating in that dialogue (Irene Elkin and David Orlinsky) were also part of the 1980 Asilomar program -- an evocative point of reflection for this historic discussion. In order to highlight the Asilomar conference theme, "Therapeutic Relationships & Psychotherapy Outcomes: Future Directions for Psychotherapy Research, Practice and Training", twelve key research presentations have been selected for presentation as part of a "Conference Theme Track" that is highlighted in light blue in the Asilomar Conference Program. Additionally, two invited panels will address therapeutic relationships and treatment outcomes in terms of a) key conceptual and methodological challenges for future research (Charles Gelso, Adam Horvath, discussant George Silberschatz) and b) differing treatment approaches (Les Greenberg, Jackie Persons, Stanley Messer, discussant J. Christopher Muran).

A gala dinner barbeque on Saturday evening will conclude the conference program with the Pacific Ocean, and a spectacular evening sunset, as a fitting backdrop. In combination with the beautiful oceanfront conference setting, it is our hope that the 41st Annual SPR International Research conference at Asilomar will provide a truly exceptional experience for everyone involved.

Finally, it takes a village to build an SPR conference, and as program chair I had the extraordinary fortune to be part of a 'dream team' -- SPR EO Tracy Eells, SPR Webmaster Sven Schneider, Asilomar hosts George Silberschatz/ Diana Owyang and program assistants extraordinaire Kathrin Moertl and Emily Bryntwick – who were essential to making SPR Asilomar 'happen'. Thank you all for your contributions to the success of the conference and SPR— very much appreciated.

Lynne Angus SPR Asilomar Program Chair
George Silberschatz, Chair, Asilomar Local Host Committee
